Customer Service

More than just a pretty face

*Kendra Lynn
Customer Service Team Leader*

When it comes to customer service, some “put on a good face,” but at UTG, good customer service is at the core of what we do because we care.

When you ask what makes UTG’s Customer Service department memorable, the answer is “the people.” At its core UTG values people. Both its customers and its employees. UTG’s motto is “We Care About our Customers, About our Employees and About our Community.” “It’s that caring spirit that set’s the UTG Service team apart,” said Jimmy Rousey, UTG Executive Vice President.

One satisfied client put it this way:

“As executrix of my father’s estate (and a lawyer), I was totally impressed and pleased with the service I received from Universal Guaranty. My father had a small policy with Universal, and both my mother (the beneficiary) and I were treated with compassion, respect and professionalism. I would highly recommend Universal to anyone needing insurance. The telephone contact and letters received from Universal were carefully and empathetically written and I found your company a pleasure to deal with in a trying time. Thank you!” - E. Silverman

According to Customer Service Team Leader Kendra Lynn, “We want to hear from all of our customers that UTG has met or exceeded their expectations. We want to make sure the customer experiences our caring spirit from the first contact with them. To ensure customer satisfaction, we have a person answer the phone. There is no automated attendant. And, we answer over 90% of incoming calls within the first three rings (or within 12 seconds), approaching 1,000 calls each week. Phone calls are monitored on a daily basis to make sure that calls are handed timely and thoroughly. When you place a customer service request, the person that answers the phone is the person that handles your transaction from beginning to end. That customer service representative will send you any necessary correspondence and follow-up with your request to make sure it is handled in a satisfactory manner. We process simple changes such as beneficiaries; ownership changes in one day. And, financial changes such as a loan on a policy or withdrawal from an annuity within an average of two business days.”

Most Customer Service Representatives are licensed agents. "Because we have licensed agents on staff, we have the knowledge to handle your needs. If an insurance product isn't meeting your needs, the licensed agent can make suggestions and recommend a different product. Continuing education is important at UTG. They offer LOMA courses, study groups and reward employees for staying current on industry trends and education," said Lynn.

Jane Edwards

The Customer Service Team represents an average of 25 years of experience in the area of customer service. According to Kendra Lynn, Customer Service Team Leader, "its that experience that makes the difference." She has worked in nearly every department at UTG. That experience gives her a unique perspective on the impact that good customer service has on the whole company. When a customer has a question, the Customer Service Team does the research to make sure they go the extra mile to get the answers to offer a customer their best option.

When you partner with UTG for Third Party Administration (TPA) Insurance Administration and Business Processing Outsourcing (BPO) services, we bring a team of administrative resources that define good customer service. At UTG, helping TPA and BPO clients maintain their unique identity is a top priority. By assigning specific customer service staff to handle your needs, your company can maintain its unique identity. Brian Coulter is one UTG Customer Service representative assigned to a specific block of business. According to Brian, "As far as customers are concerned, I am the client. So, it's very important for me to keep that in mind so that I represent our TPA clients well. The job I do is a direct reflection on our TAP clients, and I take that very seriously. Our goal is to be transparent to the customer and to provide support to the client's agents as well as customer support for basic policy needs."

Brian Coulter

Jane Edwards has over 23 years of experience in customer service and managerial administration work. "The biggest benefit I see at UTG is the spirit of team work and caring of people. We look at each client as a person and fulfill our motto, 'We Care.'" Jane said, "Communicating information in easy to understand terms makes the customer feel appreciated." Jane is also responsible for issuing new products. Her connection with the customers gives her a unique perspective on future client needs.

Tammy Roberts

"When you call UTG you get a human, not a machine." This is what makes UTG unique according to Tammy Roberts. Tammy said UTG cares about the staff, and they work as a team. And, the atmosphere is modeled by senior management. They really care, so it makes it easy for us to care. We try to treat our customers the way we would want to be treated. It is important for us to treat the customers request as high a priority as they do."

UTG Customer Service employees are cross-trained so they can handle questions on various products and services. So, there is always someone at UTG that can handle your request. With 30 plus conversions and over 650 years of combined experience with the UTG staff, someone is always able to handle your request.
